A THOUGHT

Vanity of vanities, saith the Preacher, vanity of vanities; all is vanity.—Ecclesiastes, 1:2.

This world is but a fleeting show, For man's illusion given, The smiles of joy the tears of woe, Deceitful shine, deceitful flow, There's nothing true but heaven.

—Thomas Moore.

ORGANIZED CHARITY

Middlesboro has been flooded recently with persons soliciting alms either for themselves, or for some other person. Many of them have exhibited papers containing hard luck tales. Others meet pedestrians on the street and tell of their troubles. Conditions of public mendicancy are obviously growing worse and these, in our opinion, may be attributed to three main reasons:

1. Lack of organized charity. Our system, which is really no system at all, of investigating conditions of pauperism is not under the direction of single governing head and inefficiency, lack of proper investigation and a general condition of chaos is quite inevitable. Sometimes the Red Cross investigates a reported case, sometimes the Salvation army does, sometimes, perhaps, neither gives it the proper attention, and doubtless both attend to some cases. The respective authority and jurisdiction of the two organizations seem not to be well defined.

2. Lack of a city ordinance prohibiting public begging. Such a municipal law would soon discourage the practice of public mendicancy and the mendicant cases would be brought to the attention of the proper authorities. Miss Wilhelmine Marx says that she has persistently urged the passage of such an ordinance and that the city council is in favor of it, but through some neglect or oversight the ordinance has not been framed.

3. Gullibility of the public. Middlesboro people seem to be the most generous persons in the world. This is nothing to their discredit, of course, but the best way to help an applicant for charity is not always to give him money. Any charity worker knows that the majority of such persons are impostors. Each time we give them money we are encouraging a continuance of their nefarious practices. We suggest that you try this test: When a person asks for money, tell them to go to the Red Cross or Salvation army and see if they go. Nine out of ten won't.

GAMBLING AND SPORT

Clean sport and gambling will not mix, say the delegates to the seventeenth annual convention of the National Collegiate Athletic Association. At their annual meeting in New York a few days ago they went on record as opposed to gambling and to the commercialism of the affairs of the sport world. Football, according to an Associated Press report, was given particular attention some delegates asserting that the exorbitant salaries paid professional coaches, as well as gambling and commercialism, were threatening the amateur status of colleges.

S. V. Sanford of the University of Georgia, representing the fourth composed of Kentucky, Tennessee, Louisiana, Georgia, and South Carolina, told the convention that there is something radically wrong with the sport when it can be commercialized to the extent of making a hazard in favor of the gamblers. He admitted that the practice of wagering money on the various games has grown apace during the last decade, and that is assuming the aspect of a genuine peril. Discerning people, for several years have noted the evil tendency to which the National Collegiate Athletic Association refers. Gambling in the sport world has developed to a marked degree. This does not mean merely betting on games, but tampering with principles which should be sacred to a public upholding the game and its ethics. If the gambling phase which has crept into the sport world is not curbed drastically and immediately, there will, of necessity, be a serious disintegration of national sports.—Louisville Times.

Adventures of The Twins

By Olive Roberts Barton

"Oh, lookie!" cried Nick one day, as he was sorting letters in the Hickory tree postoffice. "Here's a valentine for Mr. Rubadub and it looks like Mr. Crow's writing."

Mr. Stamps, the fairy postman, pushed back his cap and peered over Nick's shoulder. "Yes, sir, it is. It is that," he declared, "Chris doesn't like Rubadub because he hates soap and water, and Rubadub's always trying to get hold of Chris to give him a good scrubbing."

"No wonder," laughed Nancy. "Chris is so black! I don't suppose the valentine has any lace and flowers on it. Either I'll bet it's as ugly as Chris knew how to make it."

"I'll bet you, too!" agreed Mr. Stamps. "But how are we ever going to find out? It's gilded as tight as a can o' beans, besides it isn't honest to read other people's letters."

Suddenly Nick had an idea. "Nancy and I can take Mr. Rubadub's valentine to him in Scrub-Up Land where he lives," he suggested. "And maybe he'll read it to us. We have our magic shoes and we can wish our selves there in a minute."

"The very thing!" exclaimed Mr. Stamps.

So Nancy wished and Nick wished, and soon they were whizzing off to Scrub-Up Land where Mr. Rubadub lived, with the valentine tucked safely in Nick's pocket.

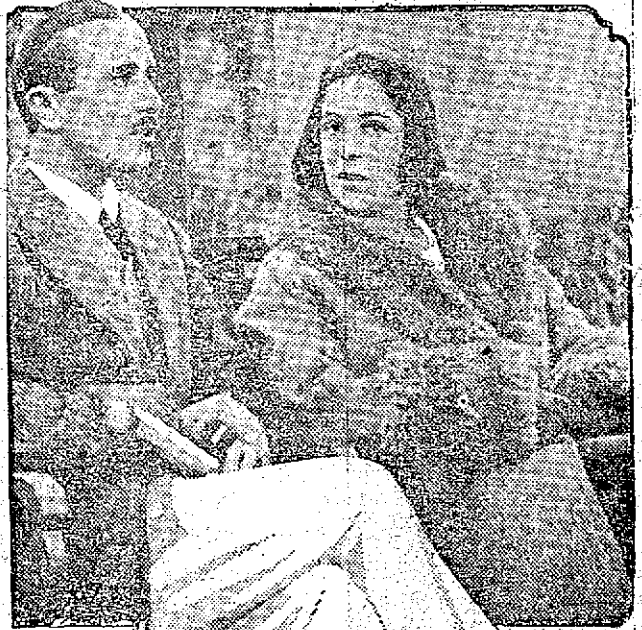

"Hello there!" called the funny little fairyman. "I'm glad to see you. What's the news? A letter! My goodness! That's fine. What? A valentine! Better still. Maybe it's from Silver Wings or Star Bright or some of the other fairies."

He tore it open hastily, then suddenly he gave a yell. "Ho, ho, ho!" he roared. "Just listen to this: 'Oh, Rubadub-dub, if you like to scrub, why don't you begin on yourself? If you think you're a beauty, just make it your duty to look in the glass on your shelf.'"

"And just look at the awful picture!" laughed Rubadub. "I've a good notion to send Chris Crow one just to get even."

Berton Braler's Daily Poem

IT ALWAYS GOES

By Berton Braler

Philosopher, sinner and saint,
May fondly declare that they ain't
A bit affected by words directed
To giving them some acclaim,
But nevertheless you'll find
With people of every kind
A bit of chatter,
Gentle flattery
Pleases them just the same.

It always is wise to have
A certain amount of salve
To use whenever
You may endeavor
To register dulcet charm;
For, as you will ascertain,
All mortals are slightly vain!
A bit of chatter,
Pleasant flattery
Never does any harm.

They may not accept in full
The oleo that you pull,
But, boy, you said it,
They'll give you credit
For having a lot of sense!
Don't spend on the salve too thick,
A little will do the trick.
A bit of chatter,
Gentle flattery
Pleases the dames and gents!

THE ONE-MAN WOMAN

By Ruth Agnes Abeling

KATE WARD, widow of DAN WARD, living with her father, JUSTIN PARSONS, has a visitor.

CHINATOWN ALICE, who says Dan was father of her child, DOROTHY. Kate is much perturbed. A few evenings later she and her father find the unconscious victim of an auto crash near their home and carry him in. Recovering he says he is JAMES LATHAM. He wooed Kate. She, fond of him, yet devoted to Dan's memory, does not know what to do. Then it develops that Latham was acquainted with Dan and believes he knows of a trunk in a fishing shack the latter owned which may contain papers throwing light on his past. They visit the shack, find the trunk and Latham is about to open it, when Kate, glancing out of the window stops him.

GO ON WITH THE STORY

At length she turned from the window and smiled. "I've the courage now, Jimmy," she said. "Open it."

Once more Latham lifted the cover of the trunk. A she touched the contents, Kate knelt beside him.

"Let me do it," she said. And as if she loved every piece lifted them out tenderly and laid them on the floor beside her. Garment after garment she removed. Not until she came to the last shabby, stained coat did she speak.

"It looks as if our quest had failed," she said. "There is nothing here, no letter of any kind. I have been fooled this time."

As she replaced the clothing, Kate searched every pocket but found nothing beside a few waifish papers, an old pipe and some matches.

"Close it Jimmy, and let's take it back with us." She had replaced the last article. Her voice was toneless. Latham dragged the trunk from the cabin and lifted it to the back of his car. He closed the deserted house once more and started with Kate toward the home of her father. "Strange," Latham was muttering half to himself. Kate caught the word.

"The prophecy had failed," said Kate. There was no attempt at levity. "I know I saw him put a packet of letters in the very trunk which we have in this car," Latham went on, ignoring Kate's remark.

"But," he continued, after a silence, "why not forget all of this? Forget Alice and Dorothy forget everything that is past and begin over again with me?"

"Oh, I know I made a promise," he rushed on as Kate tried to interrupt, "but I made it because I believed I should make it, and now I'm breaking it because I know I should break it."

"The past," he continued, "should always be just—past. It has no claim upon the future. You are just wasting your life in living for a dream of something which is gone. Let me try to make you happy."

"I can't," Kate said, "not, yet—there is something in me that won't let me. I should feel as if I were breaking faith with the dead."

"But suppose," Latham's voice was low—he was searching for the words, "suppose you should find Dan had not been square? Suppose I should say, 'I know he hadn't been?'"

Kate did not reply. She was sitting quietly at his side. Her hand, white and relaxed, lay on the door of the car.

"Suppose I should tell you that during the war I saw him at a hotel on leave in Paris and," evenly "that he was registered with a woman?"

Latham was watching Kate's hand. White and relaxed it continued to rest on the door of the car. She moved not ever so slightly. When she spoke her voice was cool, controlled.

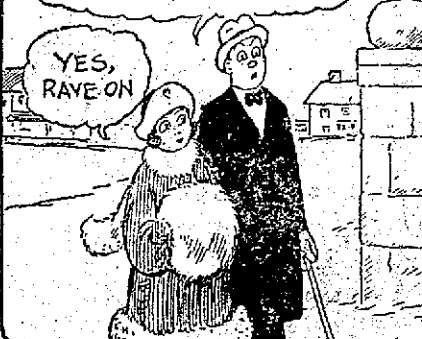

"If you told me that," she said, "I should tell you that I was the woman."

One Of The Great Food-Carrying Lines Of The Nation.

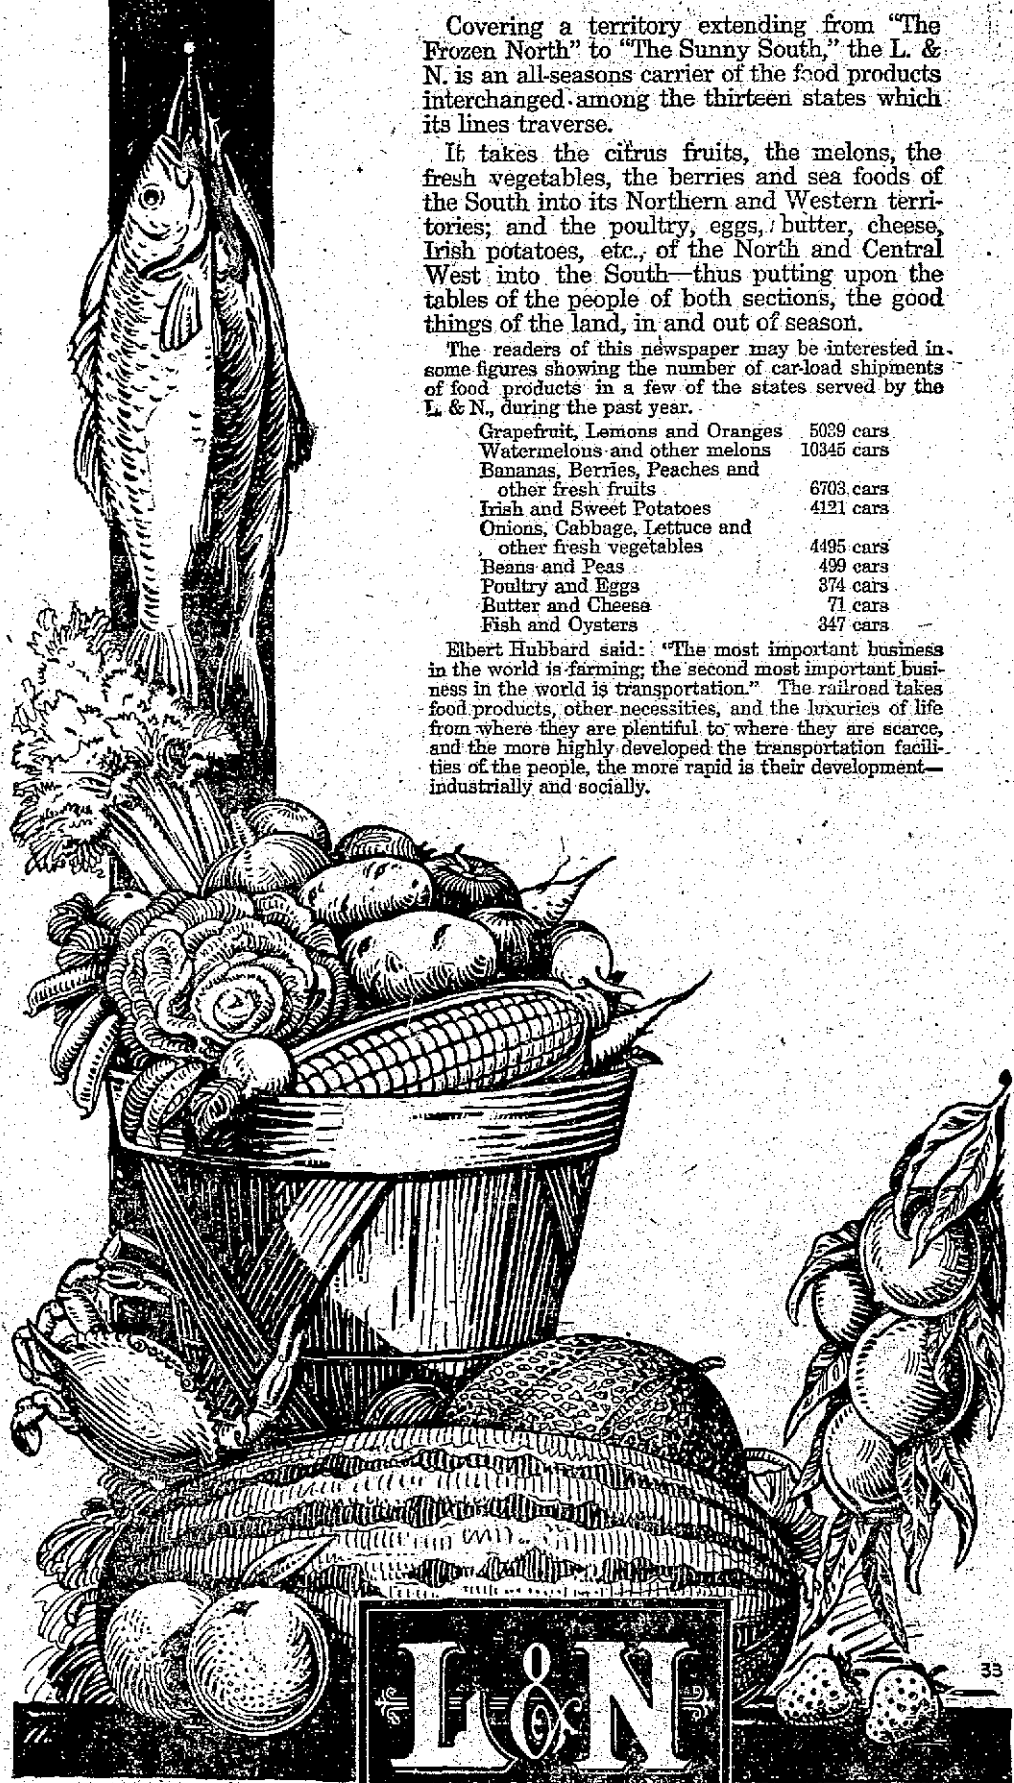

Covering a territory extending from "The Frozen North" to "The Sunny South," the L. & N. is an all-seasons carrier of the food products interchanged among the thirteen states which its lines traverse.

It takes the citrus fruits, the melons, the fresh vegetables, the berries and sea foods of the South into its Northern and Western territories; and the poultry, eggs, butter, cheese, Irish potatoes, etc., of the North and Central West into the South—thus putting upon the tables of the people of both sections, the good things of the land, in and out of season.

The readers of this newspaper may be interested in some figures showing the number of carload shipments of food products in a few of the states served by the L. & N. during the past year.

Grapefruit, Lemons and Oranges	5039 cars
Watermelons and other melons	10345 cars
Bananas, Berries, Peaches and other fresh fruits	6703 cars
Irish and Sweet Potatoes	4121 cars
Onions, Cabbage, Lettuce and other fresh vegetables	4495 cars
Beans and Peas	499 cars
Poultry and Eggs	374 cars
Butter and Cheese	71 cars
Fish and Oysters	347 cars

Elbert Hubbard said: "The most important business in the world is farming; the second most important business in the world is transportation." The railroad takes food products, other necessities, and the luxuries of life from where they are plentiful to where they are scarce, and the more highly developed the transportation facilities of the people, the more rapid is their development—industrially and socially.

THE OLD RELIABLE

GREEK PRINCE IN U.S. PREDICTS A NEW WORLD WAR

Says Poverty and Desolation in European Countries Has Whetted Hatred and Appetite for Strife.

COMPLETE WORLD DEMOCRATIZATION GIVEN AS SOLUTION

By Alexander Herman
NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—Europe will soon be embroiled in another great war.

In the wake of poverty and desolation of the last great conflict have arisen new hates and rivalries which have whetted the appetites for new strife.

And there can be no staying these until they have been satisfied.

These are the views of Prince Andrew of Greece, soldier and statesman, brother of the late King Constantine.

"It's the greatest tragedy of history," he said recently. "Despite the view with NEA Service. 'Despite the terrible havoc wrought in the past eight years, the world will not learn. I don't know if it ever will."

"As long as one nation has the coal and another has the iron, and neither is good without the other, there will be continual conflict. For years it may smolder, only to flare up when the provocation arises."

Hatred of France and Germany were embittered now than even in the hateful days of the seventies.

"The way out?"

"A United States of Europe, perhaps—but that is hardly possible today. There is no foundation to work on. There are too many national differences, too many dissident groups under present conditions to be welded together."

"The whole problem seems too great for any human solution now."

Prince Andrew looked out of the window of his room in the Hotel Ambassador, Eight floors below lay Park Avenue, New York's most exclusive street. Day workers from the East Side were jostling members of the Four Hundred out walking with their pedigreed dogs.

"Perhaps the solution lies there," the prince said wistfully, "in a complete democratization of the world. I hope so."

This from a man who comes from one of the world's most royal families, who is related to the leading monarchs of Europe!

Prince Every Democratic

Prince Andrew is as democratic in manner as he is in thought.

Dressed simply in sack coat, soft collar and bow-in-hand tie, he would be taken for an everyday business man, if he didn't wear a monocle. He has no long retinue of followers at the hotel—just one man servant.

His wife, Princess Alice, sister of Lord Mountbatten, is just as unostentatious.

"Together," said the prince, "we hope to do a 'Cook's Tour' of this country. We want to see the whole United States—and we know it's greater part lies beyond New York."

PRINCE ANDREW

After a six-month trip they expect to return to London where their children have been going to school since Prince Andrew's banishment from Greece.

"There is just one thing that I don't like about this land," Prince Andrew close. "I can't get accustomed to its telephone."

INFLUENCE

Let me remember as I go my way,
How much it meant to me to meet a friend

Who walked and talked with me but yesterday;
Let me be like him to the long days end.

Let me remember once my head was bowed
My difficulties seemed to weigh me down;

And then I found a comrade in the crowd
And we went laughing, jesting, into town.

Time was that grief sat silent in the room,
The home I loved was desolate and bare;

Then came a ray of comfort through the gloom,
A friend who understood was standing there.

No kindly word, once spoken, can be lost;
No kindly deed is done in vain;

Nor can we measure when our paths are crossed,
How much from us our fellow man may gain.

I would somehow my influence could be
So fraught with help and comfort and delight;

As that of friends who have encouraged me
And sent me brave and smiling to the fight.

TODAY'S RECIPES

LINCOLN SANDWICHES

By Bertha E. Shapleigh

1 medium sized loaf of bread
1 cup cooked chopped tongue
1-4 cup chile sauce
10 thin slices of cheese (Swiss or American)

1 cup cold slaw
Butter, seasonings

Trim crusts from bread and cut into slices lengthwise of the loaf. Cream the butter and spread all but two slices, top and bottom. Mix the chopped tongue with chile sauce, salt and pepper to taste. Spread the mixture on one half of the slices and on the other place cheese and cold slaw.

Alternate these until the loaf is all together again in its original shape. Wrap in a cloth wrung out of hot water and let stand in a cold place until ready to serve. Then cut into slices crosswise and again into halves. Garnish with watercress and pickles.

WOMEN OF KENTUCKY SEEK SOCIAL HYGIENE REFORMS

CORBIN, Jan. 30.—Bills seeking a more effective suppression of vice and the establishment of an industrial farm for the rehabilitation of delinquent women will be prepared by the Social Hygiene Committee of the Kentucky League of Women Voters for presentation at the next session of the General Assembly according to a decision of the state board of directors of the league at a meeting held recently in Louisville.

In connection with social hygiene work the board passed a resolution to support a request for adequate appropriations for a separate State school for delinquent girls, another supporting a movement for the reduction of the number of peremptory challenges for felony cases.

Mrs. Samuel Henning new president, presided.

Mrs. Walter W. Worsham, president of the Women's Improvement Club of Corbin, who is a member of the executive board of the State League, attended the Louisville meeting.

Ouch! Rub Backache,
Stiffness, Lumbago

Rub Pain from back with small trial bottle of old
"St. Jacobs Oil."

Back hurt you? Can't straighten up without feeling sudden pains, sharp aches and twinges? Now listen! That's lumbago, sciatica or maybe from a strain, and you'll get relief the moment you rub your back with soothing, penetrating "St. Jacobs Oil." Nothing else takes out soreness, lameness and stiffness so quickly. You simply rub it on your back and out comes the pain. It is harmless and doesn't burn the skin.

Linger up! Don't suffer! Get a small trial bottle of old, honest "St. Jacobs Oil" from any drug store, and after using it just once, you'll forget that you ever had backache, lumbago or sciatica, because your back will never hurt or cause any more misery. It never disappoints and has been recommended for 60 years.

Bindings Trim

Bindings of silk and ribbon are used on folds and hems of the new gowns and suits for spring. Often it is the only attempt at decoration.

Drink Water If Kidneys Hurt

Take a tablespoonful of Salts if Back pains or Bladder bothers.

Too much meat may produce uric acid, says a well-known authority, who warns us to be constantly on guard against kidney trouble.

The kidneys do their utmost to free the blood of this irritating acid, but become weak from the overwork; they get sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and thus the waste is retained in the blood to poison the entire system.

When your kidneys ache and feel like lumps of lead, and you have stinging pains in the back, or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or the bladder is irritable, obliging you to seek relief during the night; when you have severe headaches, nervous and dizzy spells, sleeplessness, acid stomach or rheumatism in bad weather, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning, and in a few days your kidneys may act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to help neutralize the acids in urine so it is no longer a source of irritation, thus often ending urinary and bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and can not injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink, and nobody can make a mistake by taking a little occasionally to help to keep the kidneys clean and active. Drink plenty of water at all times.

Sheriff's Party Attempted Raid On Merry-making—Dead Are All Foreigners

By Associated Press
BLANFORD, Ind., Jan. 30.—Three persons were killed near here early Monday and several were wounded. Sheriff Henry Newland attempted to investigate shots fired at two negro storekeepers. The sheriff and his deputies entered a dance hall where a wedding was taking place. The crowd started to attack and one of the merry-makers opened fire on the sheriff's party. The dead are all foreigners.

The firing of shots at the negroes is said to be an echo of race troubles here when all negroes were warned to leave of produce a negro who is said to have attacked a young, white girl. Most of the negroes fled.

There were present the following: W. C. Stair, president; P. S. Lee, secretary; Miss Nancy M. Howard, D. D. Wilson, Dan C. Wester, Grant Sizemore, Jack Pearl, George Neal, Jim Collett, Camus Sizemore, Grant Wilson, John Wilson, Sam Cooke, Joe Brewer, of Middlesboro, K. U. employees, and visitor O. C. Wright, of Louisville, of the stock sales department of the K. U. Co., J. W. Wilson, of the Kentucky Armature Company, of Middlesboro, and J. H. McGiboney of this city. After routine matters were attended to Mr. O. C. Wright made a very interesting talk on matters pertaining to his department and the relation of the public to it and other departments of the company. Dan C. Wester then made a fine talk on merchandising with particular bearing on the sales of electrical fixtures and appliances; how gratifying the past year's business had been and the bright prospects for 1923. W. C. Stair then complimented the employees of both electrical and water departments on the quick response to repair work in both departments and that the rapidity and completeness which such work had been done that he had noticed the past week or so. He stressed the importance of maintaining the most cordial relations with the public and of reducing the time of restoring interrupted service to the lowest possible limit. The Prone Pressure method of resuscitation from electric shock was practiced.

Three-Piece Suit

A three-piece jersey suit for spring comes in a warm shade of tan and is trimmed with bands of crepe de chine of the same color and with yarn embroidery in tan. It has a sleeveless cape that is quite short, reaching only to the waistline and hanging very full.

Importance Of Gray

Gray is to be a very important color this spring, particularly in blouses. It is combined with bright colors and is heavily trimmed with cross-stitch or peasant embroidery.

PUT CREAM IN NOSE AND STOP CATARRH

Tells How To Open Clogged Nostrils and End Head Colds.

You feel fine in a few moments. Your cold in head or catarrh will be gone. Your clogged nostrils will open. The air passages of your head will clear and you can breathe freely. No more dullness, headache, no yawning, sniffling, mucous discharges or dryness; no struggling for breath at night. Tell your druggist you want a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic cream in your nostrils, let it penetrate through every air passage of the head; soothe and heal the swollen, inflamed mucous membrane, and relief comes instantly. It is just what every cold and catarrh sufferer needs. Don't stay stuffed up and miserable.

No Guess-Work Here

Most folks know that getting eggs depends largely upon the hen's feed—Yet with many people feeding is guess-work. Their hen's lay part of the time and usually "board" when eggs are most profitable.

More Eggs or Money Back

The guarantee behind Purina Hen Chow and Chicken Chowder eliminates all guess-work. These Chows have all the elements that make eggs. That's why they are offered on a money-back guarantee.

HAVE DARK HAIR AND LOOK YOUNG
Nobody Can Tell When You Darken Gray, Faded Hair With Sage Tea

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied, with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, at very little cost. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair. Well-known druggists say everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears. After another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and beautiful.

New Clinic Furnished—Forty More Students Than Last Term—Total Now 150

PINEVILLE, Jan. 30.—Prof. D. E. Wall, who was in Pineville Monday on business, announces that Frank J. Fecke of Chicago, a friend of the Red Bird Settlement school, has just given to the school $1,000 worth of books for the library, which will make it meet with the state requirements for high school libraries.

Mr. Fecke promises more books in the near future and has agreed to continue to provide them for the settlement school. He is treasurer of the Illinois Gideon Association.

All the equipment for the clinic and nurses quarters have been provided for by Mrs. Henry Meyer, of Lewisport, Pa., according to Prof. DeWall. The rooms have been furnished completely.

Forty more students have been enrolled for the winter term than was previously enrolled and before the week is ended, Prof. DeWall expects at least ten more enrollments. This brings the total number of students up to 150. Fifty students are housed in the new dormitory. All grades are represented from the first to the freshmen year in high school.

Prof. DeWall was delighted with the action of the Bell Mead Court in granting the appropriation for the survey through Red Bird on to the Clay county line.

CROWDS HEAR REV. THOMAS
AT POOLROOM THIS MORNING

The Hub billiard room was crowded this morning by men who came to hear Rev. Trigg Thomas speak. Commandant C. Culbert assisted in advertising the service by playing a cornet outside the door.

The evangelist spoke on the life of King Solomon. He told how Solomon was the richest, as well as the wisest, man that ever lived, of how he had everything that the natural man could desire. But with all these the king was unhappy, Rev. Thomas declared. He was on the wrong road. At last he built the famous temple and acquired that permanent happiness and peace of mind that comes only to those who know God.

The evangelist will speak at the Hub tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock on the subject "The first five minutes after death." All men are cordially invited to the service.

Card of Thanks

"Look for Our Electric Sign and Slogan"

Announcing:

BLUEBELL

The name of the most recent and destined to be the most widely known and best advertised MADE-IN-MIDDLESBORO product.

Spices and Extracts

"As Pure As the Flowers"

The name BLUEBELL was selected from seventy-five names mailed in to The WARREN P. RASH CO. during a name contest last September. It was considered the best suited to the new products which are to go out from the local company to serve the world need.

OUR BLUEBELL WINDOW NOW ON DISPLAY

at the office

Middlesboro Daily News

This window display is not only unique and artistic but is also quite educational. It is an explanation of the processes by which the "PURE AS THE FLOWERS" extracts and spices are made for you. We invite you to see our window this week.

Reasons Why We Chose "Bluebell"

Middlesboro, Ky.,

Mr. Warren P. Rash

Middlesboro, Ky.

Dear Sir:

I select the name "Bluebell," as the most appropriate trade-mark for your extracts and spices for the following reasons:

First, the Bluebell being a flower presents the idea of fragrance, purity and aroma which the best spices and extracts should possess. Second, the first part of the word (Blue) is representative of the blue grass and the blue mountains of Kentucky, while the second part of it (bell) represents the county in which it is made, and could also refer to the Belles of Kentucky. Third, the wonderful possibilities of the word "Bluebell" from an advertising point of view.

Can you not realize the compelling power of a label, billboard or other advertisement after this fashion: A border or spray of bluebells, a belle of Kentucky dressed in blue, making delicious cakes and pastry, pouring out drops of Bluebell extracts from her stock of extracts and spices all bearing the "Bluebell" label? There are infinite advertising possibilities to be obtained from a conventionalized bluebell.

My second choice would be "Flaroma" a combination of flavor and aroma.

Yours very truly,

G. Ernest Ledson.

A Few Notes on
The Superiority of
"Bluebell" ----

"Bluebell" Brand extracts and spices are made and packed from the best materials obtainable, most of them being imported articles.

There are many different brands of extracts and spices on the market today, all of which have different standards of strength and purity.

We take pride in recommending the "Bluebell" brand to you and do not hesitate to say to you that they are all the name and slogan implies, "Bluebell" Brand "as pure as the flowers."

Many interesting and educational things may be said about our spices and extracts. Watch our ad on the Woman's Page of the Middlesboro Daily News each Friday.

Bluebell brand is made under strictly sanitary conditions complying with all the pure food laws. Bluebell brand of spices and extracts come to your home—
